Peaceful Co-Existence Ruled Out By Noted Canadian Soldier

Big Dance, Big Objective; Uniforms For School Band

Tuesday is dance night in Penticton and a big evening it is! There's something for even the most discriminating pair of dancing feet.

As for orchestras, listen to this lineup: Pen High Dance Orchestra, Saxie's, Ken Almond's Band, All Star Band, Peach City Promenaders.

Place to dance (take your choice) Legion Ballroom or High School Cafeteria. Types of dancing—modern, old time, square dancing.

There's a reason behind this big event, it's in the nature of a benefit to purchase uniforms for the Penticton High School Band. That's where the proceeds will go.

All musicians are donating their talents, the Legion is contributing the ballroom, the School Board is allowing free use of the cafeteria.

Dancing at the Legion will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and at the cafeteria from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.

At the Legion: Pen High Dance Orchestra, 9:00-10:00; Saxie's 10:00-10:30; Ken Almond's Band 11:00-12:00; All Star Band 12:00-1:00.

At the Cafeteria: Square dancing with the Peach City Promenaders 8:30 p.m.-11:30 p.m. Tickets may be obtained at the Hickory Shop, Hunt Motors, and Curly's Appliances.

Rogers Pass Route Favored By Governments

OTTAWA—(BUP)—The Federal Government favors the Rogers Pass route for the Trans-Canada Highway through the Selkirk Mountains of British Columbia, Public Works Minister Robert Winters indicated in the Commons last night.

He said he had a telegram from B.C. Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi saying preliminary investigations indicated that the Rogers Pass route was the one the provincial government would recommend. But Winters said further consideration would be given to the alternative Jumbo Pass route.

The present designated route, following the Columbia River around the "Big Bend," is to be abandoned in view of the possibility of power dams on the river flooding the highway. The Rogers Pass route is 88, compared to the Jumbo Pass route of 234 miles and the Big Bend of 196 miles.

Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver Quadra), and H. W. Herridge (C.C.F., Kootenay West) urged the government to investigate the Jumbo Pass route.

Green said the Rogers Pass route went through the worst snow area of the interior of British Columbia, and had to be abandoned by the Canadian Pacific Railway in favor of a five mile tunnel, because of the snow slides prevalent in the area. (Continued on Page Six)

There is really no possibility of peaceful co-existence between the Western democracies and the Communist powers except in terms of an armed truce, Lieutenant-General Guy Simonds, retired Canadian Army Chief of Staff, told members of the Canadian Club at their meeting in the Masonic Hall, last night.

Co-existence Only Way, Bulganin

LONDON—(UP)—Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin called today for "peaceful co-existence" between East and West. His words were notably softer than those used by Nikita Khrushchev yesterday in warning the West not to try to get tough with Moscow.

Khrushchev warned Britain and the West yesterday not to try to "exert pressure" on the Soviet Union because "it will get you nowhere."

Bulganin, in a speech at Mansion House lunch in honor of the Soviet leaders by the City of London, was more conciliatory. He noted that there have been some recent relaxations of cold war tensions.

Khrushchev had warned at a Soviet embassy lunch that "we have no intention of trying to persuade you to accept our system and to give up the capitalist system."

"Nor is it worth your while wasting time in trying to persuade us to give up our socialist system," the party chieftain said. "And I think that it is also quite plain to you that if you try to exert pressure on us, to demand the impossible from us, that will get you nowhere. There is only one way out—peaceful co-existence. There is no other way out. Disputed questions cannot be settled by war."

Speaks Of Nation's Defence Problem

The distinguished guest speaker chose as his subject "Some Reflections On Canada's Defence Problems."

He emphasized his point regarding co-existence many times during his address and said there is no indication the Communists will try to reach a compromise agreement or disarm.

Present "softer" tactics of the Russians are brought about by three factors, the speaker believes. 1. Internal Russian problems which will eventually lead to emergence of one leader. 2. Stiffening attitude of the west has been a checkmate. 3. Russia has reached the stage of industrial development where she can see the opportunity of offering a real economic challenge.

Popular Revolution Impossible

Here are some other observations.

Lieutenant-General Simonds made about Russia: Religion is permitted but not favored and the younger generation is being brought up to disregard it; her fifth columns in most western countries have been greatly reduced with the west's awakening to the fact that the old Russian doctrine of world domination still exists; when a state controls the secret police and the armed forces, as is the case in Russia, there can be no popular revolution; unless there is a revolution at the top or a change of heart on behalf of the leaders, there can be no upheaval.

Turning to Canada's place in the scheme of things, the speaker said, "Geographically, we lie between the two great antagonists and in case of a thermo-nuclear interchange we are going to be right in the midst of it and are going to get hurt."

"If they (the Russians) have not reached us in production of thermo-nuclear weapons they are close to it and they lag only in the efficiency of being able to deliver those weapons."

"The time of the inter-continental missile is very near, and (Continued on Page 5)

Another Blossom Campaign At Coast

Penticton's peach blossom beauty will be widely advertised at the coast and on the prairies next week. District horticulturist Maurice Trumppour expects the orchards to be at the height of their pink-tinged splendor by next Friday.

The Board of Trade Tourist Bureau promotion, in charge of chairman Bob McKee, is expected to bring hundreds of visitors to the district to witness the unique spring spectacle.

Camilla Wicks, brilliant and lovely concert violinist, who will be the artist at the final Community Concert for the 1955-56 season in the Penticton High School Auditorium on Monday evening.

Last Community Concert Of Season Here Monday

Camilla Wicks, who will appear in Penticton on April 23 at Penticton High School auditorium in the final community concert of the 1955-56 season is already regarded by many discerning audiences in the concert halls of the auditorium world as the "greatest woman violinist of today."

Although American born and trained, Miss Wicks began her extensive concertizing in Europe, choosing to test her ability to interpret the European "Masters" compositions before their own audiences. This was a noble experiment; she left the United States that first time with only one assured booking, in Oslo, Norway. It was also a successful experiment; she played a total of 87 additional concerts before the conclusion of that tour! When she was in Finland, Jan Sibelius heard her performance of his violin concerto, and immediately extended an invitation to visit him at his home — a rare privilege. Since then she has re-

Caroline Gutteridge Inquest Will Be Held Here On May 9

Inquest into the death of Miss Caroline Gutteridge, 21-year-old telephone operator, whose body was found under the gravel bed of Shingle Creek on Monday, has been set for May 9.

It is believed likely that her male companion on the night she disappeared June 11, 1955, will return to give evidence. He now resides in Eastern Canada.

Miss Gutteridge and her companion parked beside Shingle Creek Dam. Reports at that time said she got out of the car and vanished.

Dragging operations carried out for days after she disappeared failed to reveal any trace of her. Waters of the creek were high with the spring freshet.

The woman's body was uncovered by a scraper doing flood control work near the mouth of Shingle Creek where it flows into Okanagan River. Identification was made through a watch and ring.

Snow Conference Men Told Of Kitimat

The dramatic story of the Kemano-Kitimat power development, with stress on the problems encountered in constructing the fifty-mile power line connecting the power town with the aluminum city was unfolded last night at the annual banquet of the Western Snow Conference. The speaker was J. T. Madill, manager of power production at Kitimat-Kemano.

REVAMP SIGN
Annual face-lifting operations on Munson's Mountain, a project of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will take place on May 9.

This was revealed at the regular Jaycees' meeting held aboard S.S. Seacomus, last night. A mixture of cement and lime was used last year, and proved successful. The same method will be repeated.

The facts and figures quoted by Mr. Madill, and the motion picture shown later, depicting the construction of the power line, deeply impressed the gathering.

According To The Mood

"This a.m. I feel like that female of whom Robert Service wrote:

"unloved I live, unloved I die, unloved and unforgiven;" (and to paraphrase a little) "A loathed scribe I ply my trade unhallowed and unshriven." I'm told there are folk who shared The Herald in anger every time they start to read this column. I sympathize with them. I used to feel that way about Walter Winchell, particularly in the days when he was always sniping at Britain and the British, but although I listened to him religiously I never shut him off in anger. It is always better to be informed of what the enemy is thinking and doing than to let rage blind and deafen.

Anyway it's a free country. Had a chat with Canadian Club speaker Lieut.-General Guy Simonds yesterday p.m., and must report that this self-opinionated columnist's opinions of the world scene coincided with the off the record opinions held by the General.

They say clothes don't make the man, but they sure help. In civvies the General was just another nice guy, easy to talk to, a gentleman in the best sense of the term.

But put him into his brass and me back in battle dress and straightway we're poles apart. Brass, as any old sweat knows, spells trouble. I used to duck for cover when I saw brass on the horizon.

Recommended reading for all Valley packhouse workers, Life Magazine of April 9. The article starts off, "A bare four months after the merger of the AF of L and the CIO brought American labor to a historic peak of power, prestige and responsibility, the labor movement faced a major challenge to its reputation and stability." Is it necessary to say that the article deals with the teamsters union?

And the pictures, three pages of them, looks as if the Capone gang has been resurrected. I suppose the pro teamsters element here will argue that's just in the United States and that the Teamsters' Canadian affiliations are different, but there's a saying, you can't play with mud without getting spattered.

My own thinking on this FFVWU merger with the teamsters is that it spells grief for everybody in the valley. True the Teamsters can spill money into the valley to keep a strike going, but winning a strike and breaking the industry is the same thing as killing the goose that lays the golden egg, a Pyrrhic victory.

Anyway, I'm pulling for the FFVWU, the so-called rebels, and I've a hunch that the packhouse workers in this valley have got too much gumption to allow themselves to be dominated by a union that, apparently, even in the States where gangsterism, hoodlomanism and racketeering are almost commonplace, creates a bad odor.

Excerpt from the Life article. "At least a dozen teamsters' officials have been convicted of major crimes since 1933."

Mall coming in — from Vernon, a Mr. Del Eastwood writes, "Another acid letter" from a hockey fan, re your article in last Monday's Penticton Herald.

"SOUR GRAPES" OLD BEAN
Pithy, but somewhat wide-of-the-mark. The sour grapes comes from the fox and the grapes fable, about the fox trying to reach the grapes and because it couldn't reach them walks off muttering they're sour anyway.

Now Mr. Elwood has me wrong—my trouble is that I'm so stuffed with the luscious grapes of victory, resulting from the Vees' winning of two western Canada Championships, an Allan Cup Championship and a World Championship — that even if Vernon wins, the grapes will be shrivelled, juiceless and tasteless to a palate accustomed to the richest and the best.

Another letter was constituted of a printed, Reader Digest size page devoted to "how to reduce excess weight, safely, sanely, scientifically."

A note written on the top of the page suggests that "for encouragement phone 47—. I have won the battle of the bulge. Was 232 pounds now 196." I'll be phoning.

Entries Rolling In For Band Talent Show

Success of the Penticton City Band's big, four concert, talent show already seems assured, with more than 40 contestants entered and with entries still rolling in.

Bandmaster Ken Almond is enthusiastic over the response for the contest which starts on May 3 and which will continue with a concert each week until the end of the month.

Many well known musical personalities have shown their enthusiasm for these talent shows and so far there are singers, dancers, instrumentalists, group singers, choirs and a ventriloquist entered to try for the quarter final prizes plus the grand prize of $100.

Every contestant entered will receive a gift certificate to the value of $3, all donated by various merchants of Penticton.

These talent show concerts are gradually building up to be the biggest musical events to hit Penticton and district for quite some time and the Penticton City Band is very pleased to announce that everything is in readiness for these talent shows that will give the citizens of the Okanagan some fine evenings of varied entertainment during the month of May.

Auditions are being held within the next 10 days. A full list of contestants for the various concerts will be published before the opening concert on May 3.

The City Band suggests music lovers set aside the following dates for some of the best entertainment offered here in a long time May 3, 10, 17, 24 and 31.

JAYCEE DIRECTOR

George Paulson was elected a director of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the regular meeting held last night aboard S.S. Seacomus. He fills a vacancy on the executive.

Air Cadet Week To Be Observed Here

Next week, the local Air Cadet Squadron, in company with similar units across the Dominion, celebrates Air Cadet Week. The object is to enable parents and the public to familiarize themselves with Air Cadet activities, both on a nation-wide basis and at the local squadron level.

The Penticton squadron will hold three functions, starting with a special church parade and service conducted by the Rev. S. McGladdery in the Presbyterian Church at 10 a.m. on Sunday. Parents and others interested are cordially invited.

Monday night at 8 p.m. Wing Commander G. Allington will inspect the local squadron in the Penticton Armouries. The inspection will be followed by lectures and demonstrations illustrating many aspects of Air Cadet Routine. Refreshments supplied by the Mothers' Auxiliary will climax this "open house" and it is hoped that all parents will make a special effort to attend.

On Friday evening at 6:30 p.m. the Mothers' Auxiliary will be holding a pot luck supper, which will be followed by a film showing the latter climaxing the local Air Cadet Week activities.

Red Cross Fund Nears $6,000 Mark, Quota Is $7,800

Penticton branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has announced that with the annual drive for funds practically closed, the amount collected is close to $6,000.

R. H. Beckett, treasurer of the branch, said that collections now stood at $5,820 and that expected contributions should raise the final total to the $6,000. Quota is $7,800.

Penticton Herald Editorials

Congratulations To Council

Details of city council's budget, as released this week, can be received with enthusiastic approval.

Such a complex and variable group of expenditures is naturally subject to differences of opinion. Practically every item might conceivably be argued about in some way or another. But it would be a pretty small-minded critic who would not, in examining the budget's final form, agree that a mighty workmanlike job has been accomplished.

The mill rate has been reduced, and yet an ambitious and extensive program of improvements, in keeping with Penticton's expanding and accelerating role, has been ensured.

What continues to gratify the Herald is the city's obvious desire to create streets and sidewalks out of the chaotic mess that otherwise serves us. Having in mind all the other calls there are on the civic purse, it would appear that council, in this particular regard, deserves a cordial vote of thanks this year, in forwarding a program that, we hope, will last into many future years.

Only a short time ago the Herald was indulging in a rather strong attack on the dismaying dirt and dust that often reach disgraceful proportions in Penticton, and at all times are a rebuke to us. It is a viewpoint from which we will never relax, for we deem it of the utmost importance to the city, only to be reminded when streets and sidewalks are much farther advanced.

But we were not in our earlier editorial, so much attacking council as we were urging the public to support council in the necessary expenditure of sizeable funds. The public, it often seems to us, is much more indifferent to the general problem than the civic authorities.

There can be no longer any question that council is out to do its utmost to cope with the situation and congratulations to the mayor, the chairman of finance, and the chairman of public works seem particularly in order, in disclosure of the recent budget.

That the funds thus provided will be used in prompt and vigorous measures is now the community's hope, and the way the council has rolled up its financial sleeves, we feel, is a happy augury of a splendid and progressive year ahead.

Again, congratulations to the council.

No One Can Lose?

Britain's apparent decision to have a state-run draw, involving low-priced savings bonds and regular money prizes, is accompanied by the statement of Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan that "no one can lose on the deal."

No one can lose? The whole country will lose. Any people which must be coaxed and tempted by the lottery system, and wheedled into thrift by officially-sponsored programs more reminiscent of bingo than of government finance, are a people in worse than financial straits. They are becoming impoverished of morale. Or so at least the official government action would appear to indicate.

Yet the facts must be otherwise. We cannot tolerate the notion that a preponderance of the British people, in handling their own finances, must be treated like youngsters playing crown and anchor at the county fair.

Such a development, however, can do a great deal to engrain faulty habits of mind on any public, to produce shoddy character. For it has long been demonstrated that when any course of action is given official sanction by the state, it has a maximum moulding effect.

France's example should stare Britain in the face. There the public morale became so torpid that it was necessary to raffle state bonds in nearly every issue, and the habit, feeding on itself, filtered down into too many aspects of public life.

What gain there may be in savings, and in disposing of state bonds, is offset by the impoverishment of national character, the greatest asset of all in the long run and an asset which Britain has long since demonstrated to the world she has developed in abundance.

The decision in London may seem far removed from Canada, or from our own small neighborhood. But it is not. The example will induce many a fathead in this country to suggest the same governmental course. But it is to be hoped that the trend will be resisted to the utmost.

Britain's action, an error of magnitude, therefore deserves a rebuke over a wide area indeed.

Another Argument Settled

If you are a male Homo Sapien, and have been advancing the argument around home — as some men have — that twice as many men as women are killed in home accidents each year and therefore the little woman should move slowly in pushing the do-it-yourself movement, maybe you'd better check up a little.

The actual statistics are true enough, according to Metropolitan Life Insurance Company figures . . . but.

Actually only about 6 percent of the company's male industrial policy holders from 15 to 65 years old who died in home accidents during 1953 and 1954 were fatally injured while they were engaged in doing repair, maintenance or improvement work.

These six percent of do-it-yourself victims included men who fell from ladders, roofs, or scaffolds, while painting the exterior of the house, shingling or repairing the roof, or while adjusting the aerial and similar activities.

In other words the do-it-yourself categories.

We've combed the records carefully and so far haven't found one case of a man who died from injuries received washing or wiping dishes. We wish we could.

Despite this meager six percent who may be classed as do-it-yourself victims, total figures still show that taking all kinds of home accidents, the death toll among men was higher than among women.

Prominent among accident causes of fatal injury around the home were fire-arm accidents. In this category the greatest male mortality occurred in adolescence and early adult life.

We know a fellow who has been advancing the argument to his wife that do-it-yourself activities are deadly and not to be encouraged.

He'll have to get himself a new argument.

Or maybe his wife won't read this.

S. Similkameen P-TA Will Give A Scholarship

KEREMEOS — Mrs. B. Sykes, chairman of the scholarship committee submitted a very constructive report of the findings of her committee regarding the regulations concerning scholarship versus bursary at the regular monthly meeting of the South Similkameen P.T.A.

After a discussion it was decided by a majority of one to give the $100 set aside by the organization at the March meeting in the form of a scholarship. Several members abstained from voting.

This scholarship will be given to the graduate of Similkameen High School obtaining the highest standing in university entrance examinations intending to attend the University of British Columbia, Provincial Normal School, or school of nursing. Other vocational plans will be considered by the committee making the award.

F. C. McCague, principal of the South Similkameen High School announced the intention of the Keremecos Teachers' Association to give a scholarship or a bursary, the amount of which is yet to be decided. A dance will be held in the High School Auditorium, kindly donated for the occasion by the Board of School Trustees, the proceeds of which will be applied to this award. This is not a high school dance but for the citizens of the district and it is the hope that the latter will support what promises to be an outstanding social affair.

The report of the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation 34th convention held in Kamloops, early this month attended by the president and delegate, Mrs. Alberta Parsons, was a highlight of the meeting. In a comprehensive address, interspersed with humorous anecdotes, Mrs. Parsons dealt in detail with the many facets of the gathering, mentioning in particular the interesting and constructive address by the Honorable Ray Williston, Minister of Education, the necessity of bringing New Canadians to the P.T.A. upon their arrival in Canada, the importance of resolutions and the many sidelights about which the members of any organization like to hear.

It was announced that Professor Robert F. Osborne, Department of Physical Education and Graham Drew, supervisor of agriculture services, both of UBC, will address the students of Similkameen High on the afternoon of May 8. It is the hope of the staff that parents and others interested will attend.

The meeting was told that although not definitely settled it is anticipated that the high school graduation will be open, for the first time this year to the general public.

In all 24 graduates will take part. This will be particularly interesting year because the class will consist largely of the students who entered the first Grade 7 class in the new Similkameen High School officially opened in May, 1951.

Members from Hedley have undertaken to be responsible for the 56 class pins for which a fund raising tea will be held in the Moose Hall on Thursday afternoon, April 19, P.T.A. members were told.

Refreshments were served at the close of the largely attended meeting at which Mrs. Parsons presided and Mrs. J. Tessman recorded.

BEARDS

Please allow me space in your paper to comment on an article in your Wednesday paper.

The praise is long and loud for these burly creatures that are growing beards. I would like to remind some of these same people, be they hairy or no, of the teenagers of a year or so ago who wished to follow a hair style such as Incoquois cuts, Duck Tails, etc., and our dear teaching staff scoffed at them and made them get their hair cut according to the dictates of the teachers, not their own likes.

Please tell me why the teachers are allowed to appear in a class room looking like eunuchs when the students can't wear their hair or whiskers as they wish? After all teachers are supposed to set an example.

Thanks for the space, MURIEL KENT, 402 Woodruff Ave.

Hybrid teas, a distinct class of garden roses with their large flowers borne singly or in loose clusters of two or three are excellent for cutting and specimen bloom. Colours range from pure white, through shades of red and yellow, and there are various blends of red and yellow. Hybrid teas give their greatest display in June, have some bloom in mid-summer with a good show again in the Fall. The first Hybrid tea rose variety to be recognized as a new and distinct type was La France, originated by the French firm, Guillot Pils, in 1867, and is still in commerce.

Modern Forecast For Columbia River Explained By Speaker

Moisture content in the Columbia Basin as of November 1 each year and the amount of early water in the Columbia River correlated with the precipitation forecast, make possible extremely accurate forecast of runoff, two speakers explained at the Western Snow Conference being held here.

Speakers were M. W. Nelson, US Soil Conservation Service, Boise, and W. D. Simons, US Geological Survey, Tacoma.

They were discussing method of forecasting runoff. "With the two governments working side by side it helps materially in solving future problems," Mr. Simons said. "There is a lot of water, the need is to make the best use of it. Some of the plans for the future in this area would stagger the imagination."

"We have come a long way in the past two decades and if we continue to do so in the next two we will have a chance to show just what is possible in the field."

Highlights of remarks by the two men are: For April 1 the forecast is based upon the snow-water content and base flow. The precipitation during April is utilized in the May forecast and the April plus May precipitation in the development of the June forecast.

The snow-water index is based upon the average of the March and April snow surveys, for the following courses: Canoe River, Field, Glacier, Sinclair Pass, Kimberley, and Fernie in Canada, and Red Mountain and Bluebird Basin in the United States. This index is the major factor in forecasting the runoff during the April through September period.

The base-flow index is the average of the base-flow existing on November 1 for the Columbia River near Castlegar and of the inflow to Kootenay Lake.

The spring precipitation index is based upon the average of the precipitation at the following locations: Nelson, Golden, Fernie, Newgate, Glacier, Revelstoke, and Port Hill, Idaho. These are utilized only in the May and June forecasts. Precipitation during the April through September period has only a limited effect upon observed runoff for most of the years studied. The later in the season the rainfall occurs the less effect it will have upon streamflow. Two major reasons for this are (1) the rapidly drying soil absorbs much of this precipitation and prevents it from reaching the stream channels and (2) losses through consumptive use increase as the summer season progresses until it may equal or exceed the rainfall occurring during that period.

In the period used for development of the forecasting equation, the average error for the April forecast amounted to 4.4 percent with a maximum error of 10 percent. For the May forecasts the average error was 4.5 percent with a maximum of 8.5 percent. The average error for the June forecasts decreased to 3.8 percent with a maximum of 8.9 percent. This is one means of evaluating results which might be expected in the future. In addition, forecasts for the 1953, 1954, and 1955 seasons were prepared using data for these years and the equations previously developed.

It is significant to note that additional comparisons line up consistently with those previously computed. This adds further faith in the accuracy of forecasts made in this manner.

The potential as exemplified by this procedure indicates that accurate forecasting techniques are being devised for parts of western Canada and United States. It is apparent that further advances can be made in improving the forecasting of seasonal runoff at other locations in the Pacific Northwest. These tools will assist in making the maximum use of the facilities which have been built into the water-use projects.

It is highly desirable that the splendid teamwork of the past in collecting and analyzing data be expanded in the future. The friendly and cooperative efforts of all interested Canadian and United States agencies and individuals can be guided towards those objectives of common interest. This is not a task for a single individual or agency but relies upon the collective efforts of all of us working together for the future.

Contracts Let For Gas Plant

FORT ST. JOHN — Contracts have been let for the construction of a multi-million dollar natural gas absorption plant near Fort St. John. George L. McMahon, president of Pacific Petroleum Ltd. made the announcement.

The plant which will cost approximately 18 million dollars will be completed in 1957. It will be one of the first industries for B.C.

Foam rubber pillows may be put through a short spinning cycle in the washer, but never in the dryer.

If a soil will produce good quality vegetables or even grass without special treatment, such a soil is generally suitable for growing all classes of garden roses.

The Hallmark of Circulation Integrity

In the same way that STERLING on silver signifies a standard of known value, so is this A.B.C. emblem a symbol of FACTS about the circulations of newspapers and periodicals. It is the emblem of membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations* and is assurance to advertisers that the circulations of member publications are measured, audited and reported in accordance with the rigid standards that have been mutually approved and adopted by advertisers and publishers. Here's why our membership in the A.B.C. is important to our advertisers and ourselves: At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors makes a thorough inspection and audit of our circulation records. The results of this exacting audit show: how much circulation we have; where it goes; how it was obtained; and many other FACTS that advertisers need as a sound basis for their advertising investments. This audited information is published by the Bureau in easy-to-read A.B.C. reports which are available to our advertisers on request.

*The Audit Bureau of Circulations, of which this newspaper is a member, is a cooperative, nonprofit association of 3,375 advertising agencies and publishers. Organized in 1914, A.B.C. brought order out of advertising chaos by establishing a definition for paid circulation; rules and standards for auditing and reporting the circulations of newspapers and periodicals.

Clever Commentary, Smart Fashions At Auxiliary's Annual Style Parade

The most fashionable as well as the most attractive way to look this spring and summer—at the beach, on a morning's shopping tour, on the golf course, at an afternoon tea, or at a lovely June wedding—was pointed out by commentator Marianne Linnell to a capacity audience at the Junior Hospital Auxiliary's annual show "Stairway to Style" on Wednesday evening in the high school auditorium.

A wide and varied selection of smart spring and summer costumes from the Hudson's Bay Company was presented during the showing by a bevy of attractive models ranging in age from the toddler to the mature matron.

The curtain rose on a delightful grouping of models in beach and play togs emphasizing brilliant colors in stripes and dots. In this novel arrangement were models, Maureen Gibson, Patricia Eagles, Peggy Adcock, Jo Anne Hill, Ruby Israel, Cheryl Bryant, Marie Glaholm, Joyce Lunn, Gloria Greelaks, Trudy Hotson and Marcia Rowland.

The very young models "stole the show" when they appeared in one of the most popular features of the auxiliary's annual fashion show, the "Sew and Save Section," where outfits made by mothers are shown by the kiddies. Appearing on the stage in this presentation were Marele, Robbie and Jackie Wells, Debbie Adams, Jane Leir, Billy Cutler, Pamela, Judy and Joanne Reekie, Christine and Jimmy Cummings, Janet Slade, Sheila and Debbie Day, Leslie Finnelly, Sharla and Dorrie Schofield, Tommy Edwards, Sandra, Leslie and Warren Westad, Mary Joan Ware, Carol Cederstrand, Kathy Kerr, Jan and Nan Hohenadel, Mrs. Francis Hohenadel, mother of the latter two small girls, accompanied them wearing an attractive suit fashioned of matching material and similar in design to that she had made for her daughters.

Sports and casuals were featured in the next section at the successful show. Jennifer Dunbar in Bermuda shorts, and Sally Gayer in a pretty three-piece play outfit, made a charming picture as they walked hand in hand across the stage. Cheryl Bryant in red pedal pushers and a bright bow tying her pony tail was a delightful addition to the parade.

Brightly colored strands of turquoise and white beads worn by Beverly Ann Bell made a pretty contrast to the huge rose colored blooms splashed over her circular cotton skirt with black background and black top.

This season's shirtwaist dress of sky blue cotton, smartly worn by Monica Leir, a pencil slim charcoal linen, very complimentary to Edythe Walker, and the half size frock fashioned of desert gold linen and modelled by Suzanne Kopas were among the number of very smart styles in the fashion show.

The younger set could be smartly attired for any occasion in the mauve and white cotton shown by Cheryl Bryant and the glazed cotton worn by Margo Taylor. Another sweet little Miss appearing in the fashion parade was Diane McArthur. Blue jeans and the big fishing rod she carried at her first appearance were quite a contrast to her pretty pink coat and hat worn later.

Many smart and wearable suits and coats in the new fabrics were displayed in the next group. Slender brunette Peggy Adcock wore a box-jacket suit styled of blue cotton, tweed, while extreme color contrast was provided in the black short jacketed suit shown by attractive Ruby Israel. Equally wearable was Mrs. Israel's vibrant red top coat with its belted back.

Spring is stressing the softly tailored suit with straight skirt. One of the most attractive appearing in the show was styled of mustard, tweed and worn by Olive Jordan and accessorized in avocado green. The golden colors were particularly flattering to Mrs. Jordan. She wore a gold leaf print in the grouping of formal attire in the afternoon section of Stairway to Style.

The oriental influence was very effective in Mrs. Walker's sheath dress of deep beige with mandarin coat. Two delightfully feminine costumes were modelled by Mrs. Greelaks who wore a slim sheath dotted in navy blue with navy coat and hat to match the material fashioned in to her dress, and Mrs. Leir in a navy taffeta frock. The latter was slim-waisted, wide-skirted and featured a demure Peter Pan collar of white.

Pastel colors were featured in Trudy Hotson's long torso frock of sunrise pink. Mrs. Bell's cream knitted suit and in the sweet pink frocks of nylon worn by Dianne McArthur and Jennifer Dunbar for the formal afternoon grouping. Jo Anne Hill and Marie Glaholm, were attractive teen-agers in their big flowered taffeta over crinoline frock.

The wedding entourage is always one of the most pleasing presentations at auxiliary shows. An all-pink theme was chosen for this year's bride and her attendants. Tiered layers of delicately embroidered sheer over crinoline fashioned frocks for the trio. Matching shoes, hose and floral arrangements complemented their pretty attire. Peggy Adcock was the bride, Maureen Gibson and Joyce Lunn, her bridesmaids.

Mrs. W. F. Gartrell was planist for the parade of models.

During intermission the Narimata Players presented a pantomime "The Betrothal of Guinevere" under the direction of Gottfried Morche.

The opening address and introduction of commentator, Mrs. Linnell, were by Junior Hospital Auxiliary president Mrs. Louis Hohenadel. Mrs. James Fleming was show convener assisted by Mrs. Howard Duncan.

Drawing for door prizes was by Miss Kathleen Ellis.

Among auxiliary members heading committees were Mrs. M. R. Dinney, advertising; Mrs. H. W. Montague, decorations; Mrs. Maurice McNair and Mrs. T. W. Bryant, fashions; Mrs. O. MacDonald, models; Mrs. A. E. MacDonald, dressing room; Mrs. Earl C. Martin, "Sew and Save"; Mrs. H. B. McGregor, tickets; Mrs. Arthur T. Hinchcliffe, posters; and Mrs. S. C. Reekie, candy.

Mrs. Wells offered to take a play pen to the next clinic on April 26 for the convenience of mothers with very small children. It was also suggested that the Guild endeavor to obtain a small rocking chair or rocking horse to help keep small children amused while waiting.

Thrilling Jim Bond Wildlife Film Coming

Just one of the many thrilling scenes (shown on the right) in store for those who attend the Jim Bond Show, slated for the High School Auditorium on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Show time is 8 p.m.

Each summer Bond goes north from his home in Portland to stay three, four and sometimes five months. He generally takes a plane to some little northern outpost town and, after spending three or four days getting out-fitted, he is off to the mountains.

The director of game, Yukon Territory, describes Bond as "The Lone Wolf."

Bond has had many experiences, has taken thousands of feet of colored motion pictures and, as one of the top narrators in his field, will offer a most interesting program.

Three great films are offered—Fishing Across Canada, Happy Hunting Ground and Blow the Wild Whale.

The whale picture shows the stalking of the great beasts, the harpooning, the terrible fight and finally the processing of the whales. This picture will really open your eyes.

Exciting Wildlife Film On Wednesday, Thursday

The new Jim Bond Show, exciting things filmed in exciting places, from enraged grizzly bears and mad bull moose to monstrous 130,000 pound whales on the loose to Canada's finest fishing, will come to Penticton on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

Films will be shown both nights commencing at 8 p.m. at the High School Auditorium, under the sponsorship of the Penticton Fish and Game Club, and tickets are on sale at Home Furnishings, Hultgren's Hardware and Reid-Coates Hardware.

GREAT OUTDOORSMAN

Jim Bond is one of the greatest outdoorsmen of today. After graduating from the School of Forestry at the University of California, he proceeded to delve into the outdoors to find a rich and full living in doing the things he wanted to do. For 18 years he has hiked around the north learning the secrets of the untouched wilderness.

The veteran outdoorsman is not new to the motion picture field. He has produced more than 50,000 feet of colored motion picture film of his many trips. He is the author of four widely read outdoor books and many magazine stories.

He was recently awarded the honor of being the finest narrator on wildlife subjects in the United States that honor being given him by the Camp Fire Club of New York; and Bond was the first man west of the Mississippi to be chosen a judge in the famed Boone & Crockett Club of New York, a division of the American Museum of Natural History.

In Penticton, Bond will show his best three kodachrome productions, "Fishing Across Canada," "The Happy Hunting Ground," and "Blow the Wild Whale."

B.O. SCENES

Much of the fishing picture was taken in British Columbia, and George Stringer, government fishery biologist, and Allan Frisby, Vernon District Game Warden are featured actors in the film. The picture shows glant "Bluefin" tuna fishing off the coast of Nova Scotia; pike, walleye and northern lake trout fishing in northern Manitoba and Ontario; Kamloops fishing in the Vernon and Kamloops districts; silver salmon fishing off Queen Charlotte Islands.

UPPER YUKON

"The Happy Hunting Ground," a monumental film depicting "Life in the Untouched Wilderness" of the Upper Yukon, has been judged the finest wildlife film ever produced. Bond spent 60 days in the Hart River area where he found 2,000 pound bull moose, huge grizzlies with nasty dispositions, many stately and magnificent caribou, Dall sheep and other animals. The great animals of that country had probably never seen a man. They will be seen curiously eyeing Bond and his camera. Many a fine specimen is brought so close that you can almost touch it.

WILD WHALES

"Blow the Wild Whale" is a suspense-packed film that is as educational as it is interesting. Filmed on the Pacific off the west coast of Vancouver Island, the finely edited sequences show the stalking, harpooning and the terrific fight that follows as well as the processing of the whales. Jim Bond has won many sportsmen's awards for his fine wildlife work including a plaque from the Alberta Fish and Game Association. He is widely known in the States and parts of Canada, and has had more than 1,100 two-hour wildlife motion picture programs. Capacity turnouts are expected for this "All Canada" program.

The same program will be presented in Oliver, Monday, April 23, sponsored by the Southern Okanagan Sportsmen's Association.

Hall, the seventh goalie to be honored with the award, polled 99 out of a possible 180 points for a comfortable margin over two wingmen, Andy Hebenton of the New York Rangers received 64 points and Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard of the Montreal Canadiens 63.

Chatham Maroons Splurge In Third Period Rocks Canadians Back On Heels 7-1 Loss

VERNON—A three-goal splurge by centre Graham Joyce broke up a tight 1-1 game in the third period and Chatham Maroons followed through for three more without a reply to rout the Vernon Canadians 7-1 in the opening game of the Allan Cup finals here Thursday night.

Second game in the best-of-seven will be played here tomorrow.

JOYCE STARRED

Maroons erupted for four goals within the opening six minutes of the third frame to break the game wide open. Joyce did the damage, netting the winner on a breakaway at 1:58 and completing his hat trick with successive goals within a 23 second span three minutes later to make it 4-1.

Lou Bendo made it three goals in 44 seconds at the 5:52 mark to run it to 5-1. Lloyd Ferguson and Eddie Busch padded it with two more in the last half of the period.

BUSCH OUTSTANDING

Busch, along with Joyce and goalie Marv Edwards, was an outstanding performer for the winners. He set up Joyce's first two with well timed forward passes up the middle and carried the length of the ice on Ferguson's tally, stickhandling beautifully through the defense and peppering Hal Gordon with a hot one. It left Ferguson an easy tap-in.

Eric Unger gave the Maroons a 1-0 lead in the first with a screened drive from the point. Frank King evened matters with the lone Vernon goal 38 seconds after the start of the second when Odie Lowe sent him into the clear and he found the upper corner from 20 feet.

TEMPERS FLARE

There were only three minor penalties going into the third period but tempers flared in the final, partly due to sticky ice caused by 65 degree temperatures inside the rink.

Referee Leo Corriveau of Quebec City and Jimmy Haggerty of Montreal handed out eight in the third period, including four majors for fistcuffs and stick swinging.

A crowd of 2,837, several hundred less than capacity, was on hand.

"A BAD GAME"

It was the first series opening loss for the Canadians on the playoff trail this year but they weren't downhearted and most players wrote it off as a bad game.

"We've played teams just as good before this season," said Coach George Agar. "That lay-off (nine days) hurt us but we're not making excuses. That's the worst licking we've taken this year."

Agar intimated he may shake up his lineup for the second game. This will likely mean that defenseman Yogi Kraiger, a third replacement added to the roster this week, will see action.

PCL Roundup

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The San Diego Padres took the Pacific Coast League lead away from Seattle last night and the Rainiers headed for Bordertown to see what they can do about getting it back.

The Pads parlayed a 4-1 victory over Vancouver and a 5-2 San Francisco win over Seattle into a half game lead as the teams switched partners in midweek.

In other games yesterday Los Angeles clobbered Portland 11-5 and Sacramento swept its three-game series with Hollywood by winning 7-4.

Little Leaguers Practice Tomorrow

Little League's pool players are all urged to turn up at Little League Park tomorrow, Saturday, at 2 o'clock.

And, at the same time, a reminder is issued that all prospective players who did not register recently, still have that opportunity.

If they're still interested in playing Little League, they can be registered tomorrow. Practice will get underway, and arrangements made for further practices in the coming week when the boys will be segregated into age groups for "looking over" by the coaches and managers.

Runs 26 Miles; Wants To Dance

BOSTON (BUP) — A Finnish artillery sergeant wanted to go dancing after running the fastest marathon in recorded history.

"Let's go dancing," 27-year-old Antti Viskari said yesterday through an interpreter after posting a time of 2:14.14 for the 26-mile, 385-yard run.

"I could have run another five or 10 kilometers," he enthused. "But maybe not so fast."

Viskari strangely enough was rated only fifth best in his own country, Finland's four top marathoners staying home to work out for the Olympics. The sergeant breezed home to win some 60 yards ahead of second place finisher Johnny Kelley, a Boston University graduate student and one of America's two best marathoners. Kelley's time was 2:14.33.

Viskari's time was four minutes and eight seconds faster than the record set last year by Japan's Hideo Hamamura. Japan did not send any long-distance runners to the Boston Athletic Association run this year, also saving them for the Olympics next August.

Baseball Results

NEW YORK (UP) — In the National League yesterday, the Brooklyn Dodgers edged the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-4, in nine innings. The Cincinnati Reds squeezed by the St. Louis Cardinals, 10-9, in another 10-inning battle. The Milwaukee Braves beat the Chicago Cubs, 3-1. And the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the New York Giants, 3-2.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox topped the Baltimore Orioles, 4-2, for the third straight time. The Chicago White Sox edged the Cleveland Indians, 1-0, in the ninth. The Kansas City Athletics beat the Detroit Tigers, 4-1. The Washington Senators defeated the New York Yankees, 7-3.

In the International League, Montreal clobbered Columbus 13-5 — Toronto downed Richmond six-three — and Rochester edged Havana three-two — and Buffalo dumped Miami 6-1.

SHAWINIGAN FALLS (BUP) — The Shawinigan Falls Cataracts looked every bit like league champions last night as they returned to their old form on home ice and exploded for five goals to beat the Montreal Royals 7-1. The win kept alive their chances in the best-of-seven AHL finals.

Canucks on Ropes As Warriors Win Baseball Results

WINNIPEG (BUP) — The Winnipeg Warriors skated to within one game of the Western Hockey League championship last night by defeating the Vancouver Canucks 4-0. This was their third victory of the best-of-seven games final.

The victory in a savagely-played encounter, gave the Winnipeggers a 3-2 edge in a series that will produce the west's representatives for the Edinburgh Trophy playoff against the Quebec League champions.

It also re-established them as favorites to sweep all the honors in their first year as members of the professional nine-team western circuit.

The Winnipeg team was placed in a position to wrap it up on home ice Saturday night. If they fail to win Saturday's encounter, the teams will switch back to Vancouver for a seventh and deciding game next Tuesday.

A Winnipeg arena crowd of 9,296 saw the Warriors reverse the form they had displayed last Tuesday night when the Canucks had whipped them 4-2 and had locked the series at two victories each.

The capacity crowd also saw a hard checking game, in which tempers were on the verge of erupting several times.

Walters Loses 10-Round Fight

VANCOUVER (BUP) — Cecil Shoemaker, 125½, of Los Angeles, won a unanimous decision over Len Walters, 27, of Vancouver in Thursday night's boxing bout in Vancouver.

During the 10-round feather-weight match, Shoemaker spent most of his time in mid-fight and took advantage of Walters' jabbing and moving tactics to score well with his counter-punching left hooks and right body punches.

Walters seemed to come on in the late rounds, but Shoemaker had been punching with enough authority to pile up the points in his favor.

In the semi-windup, an eight-round middleweight bout, Buddy McDonald, 144½, of Vancouver, defeated Jim Jones, 152½, of Los Angeles.

One of the best preliminaries seen in Vancouver in more than a year was the featherweight bout, in which Johnny Creanza, 120½, of Vancouver, took a four-round decision over Louis Espinoza, 120, of Los Angeles. Creanza, a fast-punching former Golden Gloves boy, won over a more experienced battler.

In other prelims, Joe Brown, 177½, of Vancouver, kayoed Al Noriega, 164, of Seattle, at 25 seconds of the second round in a scheduled six-round heavyweight match. In a four-round middleweight contest, Cliff Fidler, 158, of Vancouver, defeated Tommy Berg, 154½, of Seattle.

L'Affaire Monaco Even Rocked United States Sports World

Oscar Fraley UP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — The sports world, dewey-eyed and devastatingly emotional, wrung out its red bandannas today and settled almost back to normal in the wake of the Grace Kelly-Prince Rainier wedding.

Of course, it will be a while before they all fall into a stride. As the boxing boys allowed, as result of the various investigations, "This thing shook us up pretty good."

So here are some of the sporting quotes, and slightly paraphrased quotes, on the transatlantic Philadelphia story:

Yogi Berra: "I sincerely hope that nobody infers any Freudian overtones but to me this is a modern conquest for Eros in what unquestionably is a veritable present-day repetition of the classic of Tristan and Isolde."

Mekey Mantler: "Ugh!"

Duke Snider: "For some reason or other, I never received an invitation."

King Clancy: "Me nelder."

Lou Little: "You might not win as many titles, but you can make more ground with the Statue of Liberty play."

Philadelphia Phillies: "We wish everybody would come back home while we're still in the first division."

Moore Bergt: "You jouns, look him and on those tables the visiting team doesn't have a chance."

Sam Snead: "Them thar mountains shore would be a fine place for a feller to bury his tomato cans."

Eddie Arcaro: "A boat race, pure and simple."

Georgious Giorgio: "Worent the clothes simply divine?"

Casey Stengel: "Well, one time in Kaycee, there was this here feller, and in Boston another guy named Kelly won the marathon, so whatta ya gonna do with two on base and nobody out? So why not?"

Wes Santee: "Even without me, Monaco will not win the Olympic games."

The Navy Crow: "A dollar, a dollar, a 10 o'clock sculler."

Rocky Graziano: "I jings wuz

RED SOX PRACTICE

Senior baseball practices will continue this weekend. The Red Sox contingent take to the diamond at King's Park for some warming up tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and also on Sunday at the same hour.

Queen's Park Rangers, Hotspurs Kick Off Soccer Season Sunday

First soccer game of the year here is slated for Queen's Park on Sunday with kick-off time 2 p.m.

Queen's Park Rangers, fresh from their victory at Vernon last Sunday by a 3-0 score, host the Kelownia Hotspurs. There are six teams in the league this year; Penticton, Kelowna, Vernon, Armstrong, Indian School at Vernon and Kamloops.

A revised schedule has been drawn with the first half of the schedule being played this spring, second half in the fall, then playoffs.

Fans are invited to turn out on what is hoped will be a sunny afternoon to see the finest in Valley soccer.

Here's a reminder of a soccer game slated for Empire Stadium, Vancouver, at 8 p.m. on June 9 when two of the Old Country's finest teams, Aberdeen and Everton, will be playing.

Many Valley fans will undoubtedly want to travel to the coast for this game, and word has been received here that tickets may be obtained by writing to Hicks Ticket Bureau, 610 Dunsmuir Street, Vancouver.

Registration At Queen's Park Tomorrow For Babe Ruth League

Tomorrow will mark registration day for the Babe Ruth league players of the coming ball season here in Penticton.

The time will be 2 o'clock, down at the Babe Ruth diamond in the Queen's Park area, and the executive members, with coaches and managers, will be on hand to cast a careful eye on this spring's young hopefuls.

Eligible for play are boys in the 13, 14 and 15-year-old class. As long as a boy does not reach his sixteenth birthday before September 1, he can be enrolled.

Aspirants to the four Penticton teams will be showing up on Saturday. The fifth team this season, representing Naramata, will not be involved in this registration.

The Naramata team, incidentally, is already well under way, it is reported, with practices rounding the squad into shape. This was the team that made things very lively last year, and is apparently even more determined with regard to the coming season.

A point to be discussed with the young players here on Saturday will be whether they favor the 75-foot or 90-foot baseline play. Their expressed opinion, say executive members, will go a long way to determining the final decision.

Junior Canadians Still In Playoffs

MONTREAL (BUP) — Forward Mitchell Lagace saved the Montreal Junior Canadiens from almost certain defeat in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup playoffs at the hands of the Toronto Marlboros last night when he tallied for the Royals third goal to tie the game at 3-3.

The Marlies, leading right up to the final six minutes, seemed to have the game, and the Eastern Canada championship in their grasp when Lagace came through with the tying goal.

With the Marlies leading the best-of-seven series 3-1, and last night's game tied, Toronto still has a chance to end the series and collect the title in the sixth game scheduled for Sunday at Toronto.

Inter-Continental Missile Near

It has been published that the elapsed time from launching in Russia to arrival at a target in North America will be some 30 minutes.

Lieutenant-General Simonds said the great inventions of history have come from one brilliant mind, a mind that has hit upon an idea and followed it through to a successful conclusion.

He warned that this person does not necessarily have to live on this side of the Iron curtain. "It could be the successful conclusion of an idea by an Hungarian or a Chinese that would tip the technical scales."

Text of Lieutenant-General Simonds' address follows, in part: "What I want to speak on this evening are some reflections on the problems of Canadian defence. In the past few months, we have been through one of those cycles in international affairs that range from high optimism preceding the first of what we call the 'Conferences at the Summit' to pretty deep pessimism at the present moment, and I think that everybody in the Western Democracies should draw two very clear lessons from the events of the past few months immediately behind us.

"The first is the completely changed tempo of developments in international affairs today. Prior to the turn of the century a change such as has occurred over a period of a very few months would have probably taken years, and the signs and portents would have been pretty clear and would have given countries a far better opportunity to adjust themselves to changing conditions than they have in the time of today; in the space of a very few months we have gone through the cycle from a good deal of hopeful thinking that we could settle down in peaceful co-existence with the Russian Communists to finding ourselves in a worse position today than we were before that 'Summit' conference took place.

"The other lesson is a reiteration of one that was clear before; that there is really no possibility of peaceful co-existence between the Western democracies and the Communist Powers, except in terms of an armed truce. Their long-term objectives have not changed one iota and, included in those long-term objectives, based on the belief that the two systems cannot really live side by side, is the destruction of our Western concept of free democracy. Whilst the Communist tactic of the moment is to claim that communism and democracy can live in peaceful co-existence there is no let-up of their rigid grip on their satellite, and no let-up on their subversive activities to undermine democracy in states within it. 'Now there are a good many wishful thinkers, in my opinion, who believe that this problem may be resolved in terms of a popular revolution within the Communist countries, which would overthrow the Communist regime and establish a free government. I don't believe that a popular revolution, is possible in the modern police state. To have a popular revolution you've got to have leadership—you've got to have a cell underlying the revolutionary change disseminated very widely throughout the population, and then, you've got to have action. Now, in a Police State, as soon as any counter-revolutionary idea is broadcast or disseminated beyond a very, very small group, it is detected by the Secret Police and the leaders are discovered and liquidated; and, even assuming you could get the idea sufficiently widespread to get action, the days in which a popular mob could overthrow the ruling power by using sticks and stones are finished in the days of tanks and aeroplanes. Providing the Regime continues to control the Secret Police and the Armed Forces, a popular revolution is simply not possible.

"I often wonder if the persuasive grip of the police state is fully appreciated by people who live under a free democratic government. Democratic peoples are inclined to think rather loosely on this matter of a popular revolution in a modern police state. In making that statement, I do not intend to imply that this conflict can only be resolved by war and that I think war is inevitable. I do not think war is inevitable. But I am convinced this change of the Communist regimes to a more moderate way of thinking is only going to come about over a very long period of time and change can come only in terms of a palace revolution.

"During the time of both the four-power conferences there was a good deal of talk about disarmament. Naturally the Russians would welcome disarmament on our part and see us weaken ourselves. But disarmament doesn't make any sense in my view until there is a real demonstration on their part to reach compromise and reasonable solution on the outstanding problems which really are at the root of the continuing friction at the present time.

A fact of geography which we cannot escape and cannot be altered by any government or any amount of wishful thinking, is the fact that we lie between the two great antagonists in this contest, the United States on one side and the USSR on the other, and should it come to be involved beyond any choice or desire of our own whatsoever. We are directly in the line of thermo-nuclear traffic, and it is, therefore, very much in our interest to do what we can to try and prevent an all out showdown. That situation creates, our first and major defence commitment — defence of the homeland. The other commitment which we have accepted and which, from all indications, has the support of the vast majority of the people of the country is our association in the alliance known as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which is a gathering together of those free nations which are prepared jointly to oppose the further spread of Communism, and that commitment involves the defence of Western Europe to which we are making a contribution.

Now, what courses of strategy are open to us in a military sense in the face of these commitments? There is one extreme school which advocates complete reliance up on the threat of thermo-nuclear retaliation — "massive retaliation, at places and times of our own choosing" as the principal means of deterring the communists from a final showdown at arms. Now, I believe that reliance on that by itself is very dangerous. I think that, over the years immediately behind us, the possession by the United States of the atomic weapon and the means of delivery, has been the great make-weight in the balance of power. But that weapon, and I am expressing now a personal opinion, is a wasting asset. It is a wasting asset because it is quite apparent that the Russians are making very rapid progress in their own development and building up a stockpile both of atomic and thermo-nuclear weapons. And in the field of aerial warfare and airpower, ever since the early nineteen-thirties, the offensive has been in the ascendancy, and there is every indication that it is going to remain so.

The modern bomber can be made with a performance, at least the equivalent, in terms of operational height and speed, of the modern fighter. That ascendancy of the offensive was expressed in military discussions before the second World War in the terms: "Some of the bombers will always get through." During the second World War, the bombing attacks by either side were brought pretty well to a standstill or turned back from a given target area if the defence could inflict a steady rate of attrition of about 15 per cent. If they could inflict on the attackers a consistent attrition rate of about 15 per cent, the attacking force could no longer stand the loss and they had to swerve from one target or target system and try something else. But in terms of a bomber force armed with thermo-nuclear weapons, an attrition rate of 80 or 90 per cent against an attacking bomber force of 100 or 200 bombers is meaningless, because the 10 or 15 that would get through can devastate the industrial heartland of the nation under attack. Now I say that the offensive in aerial warfare has been in the ascendancy, is still in the ascendancy and has every indication of remaining so, because we are now moving into, indeed are on the threshold of the period when the inter-continental guided missile becomes a practical, operational weapon and, against that at the moment there is no defence in sight.

"So if we place all our reliance on thermo-nuclear retaliation we believe may frequently find ourselves in the very dangerous position of either having to give in and submit to a process of encroachment and erosion that is going on, or facing up to the full thermo-nuclear exchange with the devastating effect it would have on our own countries and the world at large.

"Now what is the other alternative strategy? The alternative strategy is that represented in the build-up and concept of NATO — the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — balanced military forces where our military strength is developed so that we have a number, not only one means of dealing with military aggression.

Now, in Canada, have we taken, or are we taking the measures which would enable us, as a nation, to spring to arms quickly? I think it is quite conspicuously obvious to everyone of you in this room that we have not and are not. So we are not prepared properly for either one of these strategic concepts or any of the shades and variations that you could take between the two. Now, why are we not? Why are we not preparing? If we were properly prepared for thermo-nuclear attacks, everyone of you in this room, now would have a card telling you what the nation expected you to do in a crisis. We cannot properly prepare for this, and we are not properly prepared for it because there is no political leader in this country,

Legal For City To Buy On Time

Assurances that the city is within its powers and rights in buying machinery "on time" was given council on Monday night by City Clerk H. G. Andrew, who made enquiries regarding this while he was in Victoria.

What actually happens, the clerk stated, is that the firm with whom the city is dealing rents a certain machine or equipment item to the city at a certain sum per year, and then, at the end of that time, presents it to the city as a "gift."

NEW SWEEPING MACHINE On the strength of this, city council agreed on Monday night to drop purchase of the used street-sweeping machine from a Spokane firm, and go thoroughly into the purchase of a new one as being a better investment.

Alderman J. G. Harris stated that there is sufficient in the budget account covering machinery purchases to buy this item, and that while the city might have to pay some interest, the plan would be worth while in that city would get the use of a first-class piece of badly-needed equipment at once, instead of having to make do with a less satisfactory item.

Bank Holdup Suspects Held

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Vancouver police said today they are holding two men and a woman in connection with the $5100 holdup at the North Burnaby sub branch of the Bank of Montreal Thursday.

Being held are a 28-year-old logger, a 32-year-old waitress and a 33-year-old truck driver. The woman and the younger of the men are man and wife.

The married couple was arrested late Thursday in the 400 block, Gore. The truck driver was arrested about an hour later.

Police refused to say how they traced the three suspects. The lightning robbery took place immediately the bank opened for business Thursday. Two men entered, one man approaching teller Mike Catchpole, 20, and the other approaching the manager, Jack T. Mullin.

They were driven off in a dark blue, modern car by a woman.

of any Party or color, who will face up the matter of organization of our national manpower. Now, some like to envisage this problem of organization of manpower as simply the comprehensive conscription of all the youth of the country into the Navy, Army and Air Force. The problem goes far deeper than that. There are certain essential services of the nation which must continue and would have to continue at an accelerated pace and be accelerated should the country have to face a showdown at arms.

I believe one of the greatest dangers to democracy in this whole struggle is the growing tendency to apathy and indifference among the people in democratic countries.

"I have heard it argued recently, that we do not need national selective service, because any future conflict will be waged with highly trained, small, mobile forces using highly technical weapons, and mass manpower will have no place in the order of things to come. I am at once distrustful of any such argument because it is steeped in 'expediency'. In the 30 years I served in the Army I have heard exactly the same argument.

So in closing and emphasizing the purport of my message to you this evening, I am going to put to you, these four questions, which I ask each one of you in this room, as a responsible individual to weigh and answer:

Do you really believe that we have taken the steps, or show any signs of taking the steps in Canada that, should we be involved in thermo-nuclear war, everyone not directly involved in an urgent military role would be able to deal with the problems, of rescue, rehabilitation and maintenance of essential services. Have we done that or are we doing it?

If we are going to contribute to a strategy of a balanced or graduated deterrent, do you believe that we have taken, or shown any signs of taking those steps which would enable the country to spring to arms quickly? Are we doing that?

Do you believe in this day and age, and having regard to the tempo at which events move in international affairs, do you believe that if we fail to do these things now, we will be given ample time to correct our errors before we are faced with a crisis? Do you really think that in this day and age, we are going to be given ample time to correct these things when crisis comes?

And if your answers to those three questions are negative, what do you propose to do about it?

150,000 Railmen Threaten Strike

MONTREAL (BUP)—Some 150,000 non-operating workers will strike if the railways do not accept a federal conciliation board report calling for an 11 percent wage increase and other benefits it was learned today.

The conference committee of unions representing the employees accepted the board's report, which recommended the granting of a little more than half the unions' original demands.

The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railroads have issued a joint statement explaining that the proposed wage increases and fringe benefits would cost them $80,000,000 a year, and would "so damage the competitive position of the railroads as to make itself defeating."

The statement added, however, that "in the light of the report, the railways are urgently re-examining all possible avenues of securing increased revenues and reductions in their other expenses."

City Jaycees Hear Timely Address On Income Tax Matters

Merv Davis gave an interesting and timely address on income tax when he spoke to the meeting of Penticton Junior Chamber of Commerce, last night.

Mr. Davis told of the year he had spent in the income tax branch at Vancouver.

He explained how the processing of returns are carried out and the feverish pitch at which this is being done at this time of years with returns from the taxpayers rolling in.

Coast-To-Coast Highway By 1960?

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Commons voted 164 to three last night to give second reading, approval in principle, to a bill which Public Works Minister Robert Winters said would enable Canada to complete its coast-to-coast "main street" by the end of 1960.

Three Conservatives, John Hamilton (York West), Carol O'Neill (Calgary South), and W. M. Howe (Wellington Huron), voted against the measure because they regarded it as "too little and too late" to complete the Trans Canada Highway by 1960, Nickle said on their behalf.

Winters and the Liberal members forced the vote when the minister pointed out that four Conservatives and three Social Credit members had spoken in the second reading debate without declaring whether they were for or against the measure.

The games here were played between R. W. Geldreich and Mrs. Reed.

Last Concert

corded this concerto with the Stockholm Radio Orchestra in Sweden, which has been released internationally — by Capitol Records in America.

Following this initial European tour, Camilla Wicks has returned four times to repeat its triumph playing a total of almost 300 additional concerts. She went most recently in 1955. She has recorded more than 20 compositions, on the labels of HMV (Victor), Capitol, Mercury and Capitol Records. She has been soloist with the London Symphony Orchestra in Royal Albert Hall, with the Concerts Colonne Orchestra in Paris and with the leading orchestras of the other major European countries.

In April of 1935 the young violinist completed her first coast-to-coast American tour, which included a Carnegie Hall appearance under Dr. Bruno Walter with the New York Philharmonic Symphony, playing the Beethoven Violin Concerto, and numerous recitals, and solo appearances with others of this country's leading orchestras.

A native California, Camilla Wicks began her musical studies with her violinist father and her pianist mother when she was only 3½ years old, and made her first appearance with orchestra at the age of 8, in Los Angeles. At 10, she moved to New York to continue her training with Louis Persinger and to study as a fellowship student at the Juilliard School of Music. At 13 she made a successful recital debut in New York's Town Hall, and at 17 made her New York debut with orchestra at Carnegie Hall, playing with the New York Philharmonic Symphony under Arturo Rodzinski. During these years she also played numerous recitals and appeared with such orchestras as those of the Hollywood Bowl, Chicago, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

STOCKS TOO HOT

The ticker tape machine in the offices of South Okanagan Securities was destroyed by fire at 9:37 p.m. on Wednesday. Firemen were called. They drew off the smoke and deodorized the building. There was no damage except the loss of the machine.

Fixed Loudspeakers Will Soon Not Be Allowed To Blare

When amendments to Penticton's anti-noise bylaw, given first reading at this week's council meeting, come into effect, use of loudspeakers in front of buildings, will be a violation of the bylaw unless a permit is first obtained.

The present bylaw governs the use of P.A. systems on trucks, but by a change in the wording this is being extended to cover all "private or public places."

Jaycees May Put Paper Containers On Main Street

Penticton Junior Chamber of Commerce is going to look into the possibility of placing paper disposal units on Main street.

At their regular meeting last night, Jaycees expressed the opinion that the disposal units would be particularly valuable during the weekends when there is no street cleaner on duty.

It was felt that paper-littered streets would present an eyesore to Sunday tourists.

Thumbs Down On Suggested New City Department

Suggestion that the City of Penticton set up a "traffic department" made at Monday night's council meeting by the traffic committee, did not find a too happy reception. Council members expressed the view that allocation of a man to paint traffic markers, this individual to be "loaned" from the public works department on a semi-permanent footing might have advantages; but setting up of an entirely new department was not necessary or wise.

Pioneer Players Presentation Of "The Hasty Heart" Well-Received

Freshness and sincerity of presentation made a most enjoyable entertainment last night when the Pioneer Players presented the well-known play the film "The Hasty Heart," directed by Ethel Joslin in the High School cafeteria.

The theme of this comedy drama was set in the convalescent ward of an English hospital in Burma. The story of a Scotchman whose pride was his most prized possession, and who came to know, accept and return real friendship, held interest to the last moment.

The role of the Scot was well-played by George McLean, who as Lauchlin or "Lochie" as his fellow patients called him, succeeded in this exacting part. He antagonized his fellow patients, but gained the sympathy of his audience.

Yank was a lovable character portrayed by Tony Lloyd with natural charm and ability, making it hard to realize this was his first time on the stage.

We expect good comedy from the experienced actor, James Onley, and in his role of Tommy, a Cockney army chef, he brought forth continuous laughter from the audience. In fact, the strength of his comedy almost swamped the pathos in certain parts of the play.

Digger played by Ron Carroll and Kiwi by Bill Neilson, though not major roles, were shown with clarity and polish, were humorous and well emphasized.

George Patterson was the ideal color surgeon who had a good detached air while showing a kind heart beneath his austerity.

Rev. S. McGladdery did well in his mimed role of Blossom. By the repetition of his name he made it clear he was well aware of the drama being enacted around him.

Marguerite Cranna had the cool, almost antiseptic air of the nursing sister. Her deportment was excellent and she moved well. She should pay attention to her voice tones as her voice tended to become monotonous at times. A little more warmth in her love scenes with Lockie would have added strength to a role well acted.

Maurice Joslin played the small part of orderly with sincerity.

Makeup by Audrey Allington was satisfactory; decor by Toni Onley was very effective; lighting was well arranged giving a splendid atmosphere of heat in the jungle.

Patricia Eagles with the aid of her daughter, Pat, worked hard and found excellent props which added greatly to the overall picture.

Congratulations to the director of the play, Ethel Joslin. She succeeded with a difficult stage play having many characterizations.

Positioning was good in spite of small stage handicaps—A.M. acknowledged gratefully.

Blossoms

and Nanaimo report interest in their broadcast of the peach blossom preview supplied by the Penticton tourist bureau.

ORCHARDISTS ASSIST
Twenty orchardists have delayed pruning some of their Vedettes, which provide the most showy blossoms. They will trim these trees so the blossoms can be collected Tuesday.

Fred Jamieson is in charge of gathering the prunings and loading a semi-trailer for over-night shipment to the coast through courtesy of O.K. Valley Freight Lines. A small shipment will be flown first to Calgary via Canadian Pacific Airlines.

Hudson's Bay stores in both cities will provide store-wide displays.

PEACH QUEEN, TOO

Peach Queen-elect, Miss Maureen Gibson, will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Howard Patton to Vancouver. They will take blossom displays to all newspaper and radio stations, to travel bureaux and hotels.

Penticton peach blossoms will be featured on Black Ball ferries and in Nanaimo and Victoria.

Commercial advertising will supplement displays and news publicity.

AND: EVEN TV

Mr. Patton and Francis Henadel, local photographer for CBC-TV, are endeavoring to have the promotion featured on "Almanac," popular evening TV "news round-up."

If the weather behaves as it has for the past three weeks Penticton peach orchards should disappoint no one. And if any extra glamor is needed, the moon will be full as the blossoms begin to burst.

OSOYOOS FOLK FESTIVAL PLANS

OSOYOOS — The Folk Festival committee meeting at the home of Mr. T. C. MacLaughlin on Monday, announced that plans for their programme on May 12 are coming along nicely with a good or better variety than previously offered. A donation from the Hudson's Bay Company of Penticton of material for the backdrop was acknowledged gratefully.

Building Inspector Will Attend UBC Course In Town Planning

City Building Inspector, George Corbin, who will be attending a building inspectors' convention at the coast shortly, will also attend while there, a special five-day course at the UBC on town planning.

Suggestion that the building inspector take this course came from Bruce Howard, chairman of the Town Planning Commission, at Monday night's council meeting.

It was stated that although various members of the commission had had the opportunity of taking some such instruction, it would be advantageous to the city to have the building inspector or take the present one, to ensure continuity and full availability of planning information to successive councils.

Mr. Corbin said that he would like to take this course, but only if it was made possible for him to follow it up by means of other material and information that became available. Council expressed the opinion that as Mr. Corbin has taken a keen interest in town planning, he should be encouraged to continue his interest.

"There's a lot for the city to gain in sending a man on the permanent staff for a course like this," Alderman H. M. Geddes said. "It would put definite cohesion into our town planning in the future," agreed Alderman J. D. Southworth, moving that the building inspector avail himself of the information and instruction.

Noted Educator Dr. S. Laycock Speaks April 25

On Wednesday, April 25th, Dr. Samuel Laycock, recently retired Dean of Education at the University of Saskatchewan, will address a public meeting in the High School Auditorium. Of particular interest to parents of school children, his topic will be "The Parent's Responsibility for the Right Type of School."

Dr. Laycock has spent a good deal of his life in studying children and giving parents advice on how to bring them up. As a psychologist, he has treated thousands of mentally defective children and taught hundreds of teachers how to work effectively with children.

A firm believer in co-operation between teachers and parents, he has built Canada's Home and School movement into a high-voltage organization for fostering growth and development of children. To all people interested in the rearing and educating of children, Dr. Laycock's address will be of vital concern.

Firemen were called to a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. V. Peterson, 435 Wade avenue, at 8:24 p.m. Wednesday. The resident had been burning papers in a fireplace which caused the chimney to ignite. There was no damage.

Lieut. Pearl Donnelly held farewell services here last Sunday, and left yesterday to take charge of the Salvation Army Corps in east Regina, Sask.

In 1953, Lieut. Donnelly left Rossland to enter the Training College for Salvation Army officers. Since then, she has served appointments on the College staff and an interim appointment at Cobalt, Ont. She came to Penticton in July 1955.

While here, as officer in charge of the Salvation Army corps, Lieut. Donnelly had the unusual privilege of the visits of Commissioner and Mrs. W. Wyckoff Booth and Commissioner and Mrs. Frank C. Ham.

Promenade!

By H.G.A.

This paragraph will be of special interest to the ladies of the Peach City Promenaders Dance Club. As you know, there will be a benefit dance on Saturday, April 21, in the Masonic Hall. This dance will start at 9 o'clock and will continue until midnight. Lunch will be served and the ladies are asked to bring sandwiches, a salad or something else good to eat. We want to return the hospitality shown us when we went to Summerland last Saturday night, so don't forget to bring something to eat. Coffee will be provided by the club. All proceeds go to help someone out.

Next Tuesday night, that is, April 24, there will be a dance in the school cafeteria. Dancing will start at 8:30 and all the facilities are made available to the square dancers through the kindness of the school board. Proceeds will go to help buy uniforms for the school band. Let's all go and show our appreciation to the school board, and at the same time have an enjoyable evening. Tell your friends about this dance. The program will be led by local callers.

Square dancing classes are continuing in the KP Hall each Monday night, and we hope that there will be sufficient attendance to make it possible to continue with this program. Don't leave it to the other dancers, but come along and support this very enjoyable activity. Round dance classes are being held in the KP Hall each Thursday night and your support is solicited. Les Boyer is the teacher and caller at each of these classes and dancers are being taught the various dances which will be danced in Seattle, and at our own B.C. Annual Square Dance Jamboree. Don't be a wallflower (the adverb, say), learn to dance at these classes.

Square dance in Oliver on April 28, when the Oliver dance club will be sponsoring a party in the Community Hall. If you can't decide whether to go or not just remember the food they serve, and of course, the very good dancing. Make up a party and let's go.

There have been a number of requests for a list of Round Dances which will appear on the program of the Washington State Festival to take place in Seattle on May 25 and 26, and so I will list the dances from which a choice will be made.

Calico Melody; Guitar Glide; Swinging Along; Missouri Gal; Wrangler's Two-Step; Canadian Barn Dance; Should I; Tango Fascination; Waltz Romance; Hi Rocking Swing; Country Two-Step; Waltz Together; Moonbeam Waltz; Snowflake Waltz; Drinking Waltz; Vienna Dreams; Blue Pacific; Montana Waltz; Waltz of the Bells; South; Getting to Know You; Salty Dog Rag.

There you are. If you don't know these dances then you certainly will benefit by joining the Round Dance Classes, and in no time at all you will have mastered enough of the dances to have a thoroughly good time.

See you all next Saturday.

Snow Conference

blast, and types of structures that would resist such winds. These form phases of the study of weather and snow, and their effects on the areas on both sides of the boundary.

Speaking of the broad potential of new development of power in B.C., Mr. Madill said that in planning this development and the work of such power lines that it is obvious that we must study avalanches to know their effects on such lines.

EVAPORATION LOSS

Further studies must also be made into the loss by evaporation from large reservoirs, information that is needed not only in western North America, but throughout the entire world.

Proceeding from this base, Mr. Madill painted a vigorous verbal picture of the Kemano power development, which was created through diversion of the Necha river from an east to westerly direction of flow, thence to pour through the ten-mile mountain tunnel into the turbines and generators at Kemano.

Some of the figures quoted by Mr. Madill include the following: The E. T. Kenney dam is 150 feet high, and contains roughly four million cubic feet of earth. The ten-mile tunnel is 25 feet in diameter; and the power cavern, containing the generators, is 81 feet wide, 135 feet high, and 700 feet long.

GIANT TURBINES

At the present time, there are four turbines, generating 600,000 horsepower of electrical energy. "Ultimately," he said, "there will be 16 units, generating 2,260,000 horsepower. By 1958, half of this will have been brought into play."

The giant turbines weigh 400 tons, are 16 feet in diameter, turn at 327 revolutions a minute, with an output of 300,000 volts, this extremely high voltage being required to prevent undue line-loss.

KITIMAT

Touching briefly on the development of Kitimat, he said that it now has 9,000 people in a place where, in 1951, just five years ago, there was little but space and spruce trees. The first metal was poured on August 3, 1954; and already new units of expansion are under way. By the end of this year the plant will be producing 180,000 tons of aluminum, and three years later, by the end of 1959, this will have risen to an output of 330,000 tons. The value of the annual output will be $150,000,000. um, and three years later, by the end of 1959, this will have risen to an output of 330,000 tons. The value of the annual output will be $150,000,000.

By that time, too, the population will be approximately 25,000, a fact that is already being considered in calculating the needs of the community.

Mrs. Madill, at this point said her husband, is a member of the Kitimat School Board, and is one of those faced with the continuing and growing need for new school teachers. This annual requirement had risen rapidly, and by September of this year, 65 new teachers will be required, with a comparable expansion of classroom space as well.

Mr. Madill continued, a problem has arisen in getting a sufficiently large hospital, owing to the delay between application and receipt of government grants. "And if we apply now and get grants suited to our present population, then the hospital will only be a quarter the size we shall need by the time it is in full operation," he said.

ICING PROBLEMS

To maintain this plant at peak capacity, studies of the water supply, and the effect of weather upon it are direly needed. This is also needed for the maintenance of the all-important power line between Kemano and Kitimat.

Failure of this line could have resulted from over-heavy icing, if it had not been built to withstand this. Capacity of the line to carry ice up to 40 pounds to the foot had been assured, and also the strength to withstand winds up to 120 miles per hour at 28 degrees below zero where the line climbs over the summit between the two towns. When ice to capacity, the wrist-thick cable will be expanded to a diameter of eleven inches.

But, despite the precautions nature had mocked at their efforts, for, in January of 1955 three of the mammoth towers, weighing 45 tons each had been sheared off a short distance above their concrete bases. This was the work of an avalanche, which was 1,500 feet wide.

To combat this, three steel bridge cables were spanned across the valley, tying in with and sustaining the towers.

Rev. J. R. Spittal, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, has returned from Vancouver where he attended the Canada Pacific District Assembly of Nazarene churches in B.C. It is the first conference held since the formation of this district separate from Alberta.

The assembly in Vancouver elected Rev. Spittal as their delegate to the General Assembly of Nazarenes which will be held in Kansas City in June. The General Assembly is a top-level international gathering for their church. Mrs. Spittal was also chosen as delegate to the Nazarene Missionary convention.

Rev. Bert Daniels from Miami, Florida, was elected as district superintendent of the Canada Pacific (B.C.) District. He will have oversight of 17 Nazarene churches. The Nazarenes commenced work in B.C. about 1926.

One Man's Opinion

BY HOWARD PATTON

If you haven't wrapped the garbage in it, I would refer you to page five of the Vancouver Sun, Tuesday, April 17.

In the upper right hand corner is an article, "Absence of Controversy is Death to Democracy". It seems pertinent because there have been mixed reactions locally to the current columnist's duel in this paper.

Not a few readers consider it as barbaric as a bull fight, as senseless as a medieval duel, as shameful as a hill-billy feud.

Here in part is what the Sun article, reprinted from the Peterborough Examiner, says:

DEBATE OR DIE
"Controversy! A lot of people seem to think that the absence of controversy and debate would be a good thing. It would not be a good thing. It would be death."

"This death-like state is something which Canadians seem to cherish nowadays. Canadians have become the most uncritical and inarticulate of all peoples."

"As a nation we have come to dread the conflict of opinion which is essential to democracy. NO SLIGHT INTENDED"

"And, what is much more to be deplored, we seem to have lost our sense of how controversy should be conducted; we think that to oppose a man's opinion on one subject is to insult him and to imply that his opinions on all subjects are worthless. "It is childish; it is unreasonably touchy and petty, but it happens."

"Anybody who has watched public life in this country for a few years has doubtless observed this increase in timidity and bad feeling, which is entirely different from the proper spirit of controversy."

MIND YOUR MANNERS
"It should be possible for adults to disagree publicly without forgetting their manners, and without extending their disagreement on one subject to every subject under the sun. "Controversy must be conducted in a vigorous but courteous fashion. Hard blows may be struck, but they must be struck above the belt and the fight must be kept within its proper bounds."

"The peace which is bought by abstention from controversy is the peace of the graveyard. It is the peace which precedes corruption."

That's a summary of what the article has to say. So when Mr. Godber and I disagree it is only because we agree so completely about "the peace of the graveyard" — we're scared to death of it — and we'll shout at each other loud enough to awaken the dead.

And by the way — we're real best of friends.

Penticton Gyros Review Thirty Years Of Activity

Thirty years of activity by the Penticton Gyro Club were bridged when past and present members held a get-together aboard SS Seacombs, Wednesday night.

Guests for Past Presidents' Night were charter members, past presidents and past members. They included Dr. W. J. Netherton, only charter member still in the club, and some 25 past members of the club, including two of the charter members, Alex McNicoll and William Impett.

As a past president, John Pearson Sr., took the chair and called on Bert Swift to introduce the guests. As the meeting progressed, other past presidents presided and told of their memories and odd incidents of their terms of office.

Gyros recalled some of their ventures, sparking of the idea to bring SS Seacombs to Penticton, its renovation and establishment as a Penticton landmark, Gyro Park, installation of lighting for night baseball, wing of the local hospital.

Charter members in attendance were Alex McNicoll and Bill Impett, past presidents Herb Leroy and Art Fraser, former members Jim Hooper, Jack Davenport, Cliff Greyell, Charlie Stewart, Bill Martin, George Morrison, Alderman F. P. McPherson, Don Steele, Aig Jack, Grev Smith, Maurice Ruud, Allan Mather, Dick Jeffers, Bill Gartrell, Jim Hendry, Bill McElhorn, Dick Gale, Ken Almond, Dave Hodges and Saxe De Blass. There is musical talent in the club too, as shown by the orchestra consisting of members and ex-members: Dr. John Gibson, Ken Almond, Dave Hodges and Bill McElhorn.

Apple Holdings 380,000 Boxes

B.C. Tree Fruits Weekly report of apple movements follows:

CANADA
Movement to Canadian markets has been light for the past week, but we have maintained the improved inventory position as mentioned last week. Our holdings were 380,000 boxes as at last Saturday and still only some 80,000 boxes more than the same date last year.

UNITED STATES
As at April 1, the total apple storage holdings in the United States were 320 cars more than at the same time a year ago. The heavy holdings are in the State of Washington where they have about 1200 carloads more on hand than at the same time last year, this surplus being made up of approximately 1000 cars of Red Delicious and 200 cars of regular Delicious. Winesap holdings are about the same as last year.

The movement of Washington apples has exceeded last year's rate during the past few weeks but with the surplus of Delicious and Red Delicious on hand, there seems to be little likelihood of any price advances until later in the season when the Red Delicious and Regular Delicious have been completely sold.

The last car of Red Delicious to United States markets will move today, and at the present time we are also shipping Winesap and Newtowna and some Staymans to United States markets.

Dainty china tea cups are in much less danger of sliding off a dessert plate at a party if the bases are dipped in melted paraffin.

A joint aerial spraying program by the federal and New Brunswick governments and the forest industry is waging war on the spruce budworm, an insect threatening extensive areas of valuable pulpwood forest in the northern part of New Brunswick.

Former City Students Now Teaching Here

This month, Penticton schools are sharing in the work of teacher education as they play host to student teachers from the University of British Columbia and the Provincial Normal School.

From Victoria Normal School several former Penticton students have been welcomed back to do their practice teaching in the elementary schools. Among them are the Misses Eleanor Hines, Margaret Brett, Chrystle Laidman and Elizabeth Titchmarsh, who are teaching classes at the Carmi School; Sally Crook, Janet Brower, Maureen McGuire and Ted Hewlett at Queen's Park; and Harry Robb and David Henderson at the primary school.

Out of town teachers in the primary schools are Misses Judy Hague, Joyce Elgert and Diane Adams of Victoria; Miss Margaret Domi of Peachland and Roald Feness of Prince Rupert.

The high school is providing practical training for a number of student teachers from the school of education at the University of British Columbia. Among these are two former Penticton high school students, Misses Ruth and Esther Leir, who are finding out what it is like to be on the other side of the teacher's desk.

O. L. Jones Speaks In The House Regarding Trans-Canada Highway

The following is taken from Hansard of April 16 when O. L. Jones, M.P. for Okanagan-Boundary, spoke regarding the Trans-Canada Highway:

Smfw rlmf vbgvy cmf cmr bb "I should like to say just a few words in connection with the Trans-Canada highway. After listening to the honorable member who spoke last and the sentiments he expressed, I am confident that he probably has the right idea when he suggested that the Trans-Canada highway should be in full charge of the federal government. They should have full responsibility for both its construction and upkeep. In that way, and in that way only, can we get the Trans-Canada highway through in a decent time. However, I was shocked to hear that only 35 percent of the Trans-Canada highway has been built to date. I was really shocked, because I had hoped that at least 75 percent of it would have been finished to date. We have not had a progress report, so we did not know.

"However, I would point out that British Columbia is way ahead of 35 percent. As the hon. member who spoke last pointed out, some of our roads were constructed at the cost of $1 million a mile. If that is the case, there is something lacking in the way of idealism in connection with the Trans-Canada highway. I blame that on government policy. They have not enthused the various provinces with what is possible with a Trans-Canada highway in the way of the great growth of commerce between the various provinces.

We in British Columbia stand to gain, I admit, of we have one decent road running east and west whereby we could transport our fruit and vegetables without, as at present time, damaging them more than the cost of the trip from the Okanagan valley, for instance, to the prairies. When we have a decent road I am satisfied that we shall do much better with regard to our prairie market.

"As someone suggested this afternoon, I often wondered whether the railway companies are not interested in holding back the Trans-Canada highway. I am not going to suggest that that is so. However, another hon. member did so. I remember that, 30 years ago when we were trying to get the Hope-Princeton road built from the Okanagan valley to Vancouver, the railway companies were very much opposed to it. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company particularly, stood steps to oppose that particular highway, and it was only after pushing them aside and getting them more or less in agreement that the road was built. However, they offered opposition for a long time. I am afraid there is something in what the hon. member said this afternoon when he suggested that some influence is at work in preventing construction of the Trans-Canada highway.

"I would also suggest that in these modern days a two-lane highway is not satisfactory. I think in British Columbia you will find that everywhere possible we shall have a four-lane highway. I would suggest that with the added cost, the federal government should be prepared to increase its offer to the provinces in order to bring the standard highway up to four lanes.

"What I particularly want to mention is the fact that we in British Columbia have a slightly different problem, probably from that in other provinces. We have east to west roads going through narrow ravines and valleys. In British Columbia we have a situation not paralleled in the rest of the provinces. I refer to the Fraser Canyon. We have spent $2 billion a year preparing for the defence of Canada. We have spent it and no one has grumbled. But I often wonder whether we are foolish or not in our policy of defence or whether we have grasped the significance of the bottleneck in the Fraser Canyon. We have the main Trans-Canada CPR line going through there and we have the main trans-Canada National line going through about a couple of hundred yards away; in places they cross each other. In the same canyon within a few feet of the railway is the trans-Canada highway. One well-placed bomb would destroy the whole communication system from Vancouver into the interior through the Fraser Canyon.

"For that reason I am to suggest to the government that they advance the same assistance to the Trans-Canada highway as they are advancing to the Fraser Canyon highway. I think this southern highway would be cheaper. It would be an alternate route, and at no time would Vancouver or the coast be cut off from the interior. In order to get a Trans-Canada highway that is feasible all the year round, under war conditions, peace conditions or any other conditions, I think there must be two highways in our province.

"I seriously suggest that the minister consider the southern Trans-Canada highway. A great deal of work has already been done. There is perhaps just one small portion as to which we would have to negotiate with our United States friends in order to pass through their territory. In the meantime, lacking this Trans-Canada highway, our people are traversing east and west and north and south, mostly United States roads. That is possibly one of the reasons we are influenced today to such a great extent by the United States thought and United States capital. It cannot be helped. We are getting closer and closer to them each day through having to pass through their country, stay in their towns and deal with stores

PEACHLAND

The local drive in the Red Cross campaign for funds has closed with collections amounting to $400.25, well over the quota of $350.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Johnson, at the weekend were Miss June Conroy, John Armstrong, Dr. and Mrs. B. A. Steele and Dr. and Mrs. Radar, all of Vancouver, who attended a wedding in Vernon on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson's daughter, Mrs. F. Hingston, was also in the party and is spending some time with her parents.

Earle Sutherland, accompanied by J. H. Wilson, returned from Vancouver on Sunday.

Miss Margaret Domi from Penticton, and Harold Domi of Summerland, spent the weekend at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. Domi.

Miss Audrey Seigrist who is a student nurse at the Royal Inland Hospital, Kamloops, was home at the weekend.

Mrs. P. Dorland of Penticton, who has been a guest of Miss A. Elliott since Friday has returned to her home. Her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dorland, spent Sunday in the district.

in their towns. Obviously we are getting closer.

"On the other hand, if you want to go from British Columbia to visit Regina, Calgary or Edmonton, you may possibly go through the dust during the summer time, if you like dust. Otherwise you do not think of writing to those places. I would therefore urge the minister to take steps immediately to give a little bit of leadership with regard to this Trans-Canada highway, show a little bit of enthusiasm and give a little bit more money and encouragement to the provinces to carry out the project as quickly as possible, before we find it is too late."

Keremeos Makes Move Towards Incorporation

KEREMEOS — Victor R. Casorso, clerk of the village of Oliver, addressed a meeting of approximately 140 citizens recently, outlining the benefits of incorporation. Following his address, Mr. Casorso answered many questions relevant to finances, fire protection, domestic water, etc., and other problems uppermost in the minds of his interested audience. Many seemed of the opinion that incorporation was somewhat overdue.

Also a speaker, at the request of Reg Bean, president of the Keremeos Board of Trade, responsible for the calling of the meeting, was J. Milne, a resident of the village of Princeton, B.C., who concurred wholeheartedly with the remarks of Mr. Casorso.

At times the meeting became somewhat concerned over some issues, but the able chairmanship of Mr. Bean kept the speakers on an even keel.

Finally an expression of opinion by a show of hands in regard to the advisability of incorporating was called by the president and indicated an almost unanimous decision in favor of the movement.

This will serve as a guide to the investigating committee consisting of H. H. Hill, H. E. D. Thomas and G. Thompson, appointed at a previous meeting of the Keremeos Board of Trade, who will proceed with the necessary formalities. It is believed that a meeting of the ratepayers in the proposed area will be called upon to vote upon incorporation. If the decision is in favor of such a move, the required action will follow.

J. H. Pantou, M.P., consultant for the Okanagan Valley of the Community Programs Branch, of B.C., spoke to the meeting concerning Recreation Commissions, saying that their role is varied and includes stimulation of local interest in all sorts of recreation.

Where paint has chipped off walls and left the plaster bare, prime the spots with shellac and repaint. Shellac seals the plaster and provides for a good bond with the new paint.

Make sure that there's no loose fluff or lint on a new paint roller, to cause trouble when it gets into the paint. Go over the roller cover with the vacuum cleaner.

Avoid smearing adhesive on tile floor coverings while installing them. If it happens, despite precautions, remove the adhesive while it is still soft, using a damp cloth.

KEREMEOS — Wallace Dundas returned last weekend from Vancouver where he has been a patient in the Vancouver General Hospital for many weeks following a serious operation.

Insecticides, Screening, Keep Those Flies Outside

Pestiferous insects and constantly slamming screen doors continue to be the two most common summertime aggravations reported by homeowners, according to recent survey by Yale and Towne, makers of locks and other builders' hardware.

Insects are the most annoying of the warm weather aggravations. A single pair of flies, beginning in April, could produce 191 septillion offspring by August, if all lived. That number, 191 septillion, written out is 191 followed by 24 zeros.

Many dangerous diseases are transmitted by flies and mosquitoes, but modern medicine helps to combat them more effectively than in the past. Both flies and mosquitoes, nevertheless, form the "number one" source of summertime aggravation in suburban and rural areas.

A new insect killer, now being experimented with known as DD-VT, is said to be better than DDT, to which some insects have developed strains resistant to its lethal power.

Slamming screen doors, the second of the warm weather annoyances most commonly reported in the survey, are the result of the old fashioned coil spring used to keep doors shut and bugs out. Relief from slams that grate the nerves on hot summer days can be achieved by anyone at reasonable cost. Pneumatic, air-liner type door closers ensure certain closing accompanied by no more than a gentle click.

The research survey presents the following helpful hints to householders to help combat insects:

1. Use space-sprays or aerosol bombs in the house.
2. Use the new super-repellent chemicals, such as "6-12", on skin and clothing.
3. Use residual sprays that will stick on screens, porches, and garbage cans.
4. Play safe with 16-mesh-to-the-inch screens on doors and windows to keep out all insects.
5. Hang screen doors to open outward, and equip each with a doorcloser and a push-pull catch to ensure quiet, certain closings.
6. Keep water from accumulating in tin cans, eavestroughs, and street gutters.
7. Empty bird baths of chicken watering pans at least once a week.
8. Screen open cisterns, cover cesspools, septic tanks and rain barrels.
9. Treat standing water in pools or ponds with larvicides.
10. Stock ornamental pools with gold fish or top swimming minnows.
11. Use fly traps, fly papers, fly poisons, fly electrocution devices and fly swatters in the homes.
12. Spread manure thinly on fields and lawns to prevent flies breeding. Store manure in fly-tight boxes or pits, and treat it with borax, calcium cyanide, or super-phosphate.

Spread Cleaning Over Period Of Several Weeks

It can't be put off much longer. Some set of rainy days in the near future will find the homeowner with dust pan in hand and a wild look in the eye.

Spring cleaning need not be the most miserable chore in the world if it is carefully planned and if everything possible in the way of up-to-date equipment is brought to bear.

You'll make things easier if you send out all draperies, slipcovers and rugs at one time, just before the work begins. Then they won't be in the way, nor will they gather new dirt while the session is in progress.

Homemaking experts believe that it is unwise to leave everything for one week. It's just too much of a strain. If you can possibly clean out a few of your closets, one each day, you'll find that a good part of the big job is over before your spring cleaning officially begins.

Closet cleaning is one chore in which you should enlist the aid of the family. Half the job lies in getting rid of accumulated non-essentials. Encourage hubby and the youngsters to discard the things that have grown unimportant to them.

If you schedule your work so that only one or two rooms are done at a time, you and the family will find some ease and relaxation in other parts of the house. And if you do only one heavy job a day and fill in with lighter chores, you won't get so exhausted that you'll have to skimp on some of your tasks.

For spring cleaning and all year round, you should study your equipment to see that it affords you all the help possible. A good craftsman takes pride in his tools. The homeowner who takes pride in his home cheats himself if he does not take a craftsman's attitude.

Take the simple matter of pails. For most cleaning jobs you need one filled with soapy water, and one of clear rinse water. But you can spare your energy by using a two-compartment pail which will hold both. Some homemakers may find the oval pail, which fits best on ladders, is good for some tasks.

Brushes are a big help. A stiff broom for small rugs and heavy sweeping, a soft-haired broom for kitchen and halls, a whisk broom for furniture and mattresses and a soft little brush for the washbowl are essentials. A whisk broom trimmed to a V is wonderful for cleaning upholstery corners.

Mops have been made more attractive and easier to handle. The new nylon dust mops are very easy to wash and look pretty in white or pastels. One new version has a flexible swivel socket which turns the mop sideways to dust wider paths, twists to reach hard-to-clean places and flattens down to dust under low furniture.

Many women have found the self-squeezing sponge mop a great hand-saver. You squeeze out the mop by means of a convenient apparatus attached to the stick, so you can clean every floor in the house without getting a drop of water on your hands.

The introduction of a new pint-sized version of the self-squeezing mop is good news for every homemaker who wants to protect her hands. Even without this consideration, the "mopet" is a fine tool for cleaning kitchen cabinets, walls, ceilings, stairs and other hard-to-reach places.

Such a mop is also very convenient in the bathroom, where it can be used to whisk over the tub and tiles with ease.

Sponges in general make fine cleaning tools and are easy on the hands. Make sure you have enough of them before the big cleaning starts.

A wheeled cart is an invaluable aid. Just load all your cleaners, brushes, dust cloths, polishes on it and move it about the house as you go. It will not only save steps, but it tends to keep you organized.

Building Queries

Question: Several months after making a small concrete patio the top of the concrete began getting powdery. My dealer said I might have made a bad mix because I used sand from a river bank instead of the kind of sand that is sold commercially for mixing with cement. Can you tell me whether this is so?

Answer: Your dealer probably is right. Sand used in making concrete should be clean and free from foreign materials. When you use sand from a river bank or the seashore, it contains mud, grease and other substances which prevent it from bonding properly with the cement. To correct the condition, you'll have to put another layer of concrete over the other. But be sure to buy and use a preparation which will enable you to bond new concrete to old concrete.

Hardwood Furniture Reviving

Not only can't man make a tree, he also can't produce anything to match the natural beauty of fine woods.

That's the opinion of Leonard Haber, who has designed a collection of furniture that uses Swiss pearwood, English sycamore, French walnut and French rosewood all heightened by the use of 22 carat gold hardware.

"Appreciation of the beauty of fine wood," Haber said, "is gradually being lost in furniture design. The home today is very much a maze of complicated materials such as vinyl, stainless steel and glass."

"These are all very good in their place, but there is nothing so beautiful as a rich, true veneer," he continued.

"There is no limit to the possibilities of woods or fine veneers which can be used, although fashion periods exist and a designer must cater to the taste of the public."

"But I think the day of poorly executed furniture is coming to an end — the day of cutting up a piece of plywood and putting legs on it is over."

RUBBER TILE FLOOR

You can give a custom look to your foyer by planning a rubber tile floor with your own monogram as a centre of interest. Resilient rubber is easy to cut into decorative shapes with an ordinary rubber flooring knife, an fans. Rubber is a trouble-free ideal choice for do-it-yourself choice for foyer flooring. It's easy to keep it sparkling just by an occasional once-over with a damp mop.

If the alarm clock ticks so loudly it's annoying on a night table, make a silencer for it. Place it on a rectangle of foam or sponge rubber, one that's larger than the clock base to prevent tipping.

If your chores include moving the refrigerator from its usual niche for cleaning, just wet and soap the floor, then an easy shove will do the rest of the moving job for you.

Empty and full containers of canned goods are less likely to become intermixed on your pantry shelves if you install a centre divider on each shelf. Keep empty jars on one side of the divider and full ones on the other side. Potluck evening. To band is in in Summerland High School on

The Garden Gate

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN

A vegetable garden, a good one, begins with the soil and the way you handle it.

The rewards can be great. Even a small garden, if it's tended properly, can produce heavy yields of delicious, healthy vegetables.

Very few foods can match the rich flavor of a tomato ripened on the vine. Millions of gardeners will be enjoying their own tomatoes and sweet corn picked at the height of its flavor.

You'll have to start early to get in on this good eating, and you'll have to begin with the ground.

A plot for a town or suburban garden must be in the open, where it can get sunlight for at least six hours a day. If your land doesn't get sunlight for more than six hours a day, plants like tomatoes, eggplants, peppers and lima beans probably won't do very well.

The land must be well drained, too, and reasonably fertile. If the soil you want to use is well drained and produces a good crop of grass or weeds, it can probably be developed into a good garden.

The first spring job is working the soil. Plow it up, or spade it as soon as the soil is dry enough to crumble in your hand.

If you have a heavy clay soil, it can be improved by turning under manure, compost or ashes.

Some garden soils will need lime after the soil is plowed or spaded, but if you use both manure and commercial fertilizer, chances are you won't need lime.

Experts advise the use of commercial fertilizers even when plenty of manure is used. On small gardens, the commercial fertilizer should be raked or harrowed into the top three or four inches of soil. If you spread fertilizer under your seed rows, the fertilizer should be mixed with soil.

There's another way to handle it. You may spread it about two inches from the seed, and the experts say beginners should be careful not to use too much commercial fertilizer in small gardens. From 50 to 60 pounds is enough for a garden measuring 30 x 50 feet.

Compost is a great help to vegetable gardeners, too. A garden book or a neighboring gardener can tell you how to make compost and use it to improve your soil.

Here are some do's and don'ts for vegetable growing once the soil is ready.

First, plan your garden carefully. Put the tall, long growing crops on one side, the small, fast-growing vegetables on another. When you harvest an early crop like spinach or radishes, be ready to follow it with a late crop like cabbage or beets.

Second, get the best quality seeds or plants you can find. Get varieties that are adapted for home gardens, and for the soil and climate of this area.

And don't plant too much. Most gardeners, especially beginners, buy too much seed and plant too thickly.

Planting time is important. Your seed or garden store can probably give you the best planting dates for the varieties you choose. Follow their advice and the advice of other experts on matters like planting dates and methods. Do that and you'll have a good start to a summer and fall supply of home-grown vegetables.

Civil Defence In A Target City

Eighth of a series of 24 articles

The mechanization of war has made cities, where factories and industrial plants are most densely concentrated, the likeliest targets in a nuclear war. Federal civil defence officials estimate that one H-bomb, with the destructive force of 5,000,000 tons of TNT, would obliterate everything in an area of about 27 square miles.

Phase A—Enough warning of an attack is expected so that about a third of the population can be taken out to communities up to 100 miles away. This would include children up to high school age, mothers with small children, patients and staffs of hospitals and others who have key work to do.

Phase B—Planned withdrawal of the rest of the population when attack appears certain. Every available means of transportation would be used. This requires a carefully worked out plan, for which the provinces and municipalities are responsible. A city must be divided into sectors, each with its exit route. No traffic would be allowed to cross exit routes and incoming traffic would be stopped at least 25 miles out of the city. Police and civil defence volunteers must provide the vast amount of supervision required for carrying out the evacuation.

Phase C—Civil defence authorities must instruct the public on whatever additional survival action should be taken as the bomb explodes. Everyone must remain in shelters or, if on an evacuation route, keep going until directed to shelter. These directions would be given by radio through traffic officers and civil defence wardens.

Phase D—In this post-bomb period, hundreds of thousands of people will be scattered outside the city in small communities. People may be separated from families and must be brought together again. They must be kept informed, given food, shelter and clothing and protection against radioactive fall-out, the dangerous dust from the pulverized city sitting down from the sky an hour or so after the blast.

The rehabilitation period that followed would not be handled by civil defence alone but by all government agencies and all the people of Canada.

To carry out such an immense detailed plan these essential steps are recommended:

A well-organized civil defence force, including auxiliary personnel for police and fire duties and wardens, about one to every 150 families to supply the vital link between the people and the city's main C.D. organization.

Development of an operational plan for evacuation. The city civil defence director should set up working teams to find solutions to every problem. Then the plan must be tried out.

F. F. Worthington, federal civil defence co-ordinator, was not exaggerating when he said, "Evacuation of a large city will work well only when a great deal of planning and testing has been done."

FROST LOSS IN WASHINGTON IS COSTLY MATTER

OLYMPIA, Wash. — Last November's freeze will cost Washington farmers and nurserymen more than 50 million dollars, State Agriculture Director Sverre Omdahl estimated Monday.

He said damage to hay, pasture and forage could boost that total "many, many millions of dollars" but it is impossible yet to estimate the full loss in tonnage or dollars.

Omdahl said the biggest fruit loss, moneywise, was in apples, with this year's production expected to be no more than 50 per cent of normal. Many trees will have to be replaced, he said.

Cherries suffered the greatest damage of all the tree fruits. This year's crop is expected to be only 25 per cent of normal. Losses will be felt over several years because of damage to trees, Omdahl said.

Pears fared better than most other fruits, with this year's crop expected to be 60 per cent or more of normal and as high as 85 per cent in some orchards.

Tree loss was about 10 per cent. The peach and apricot crops will be about 60 per cent, with tree losses approximately five per cent.

The prune crop in the Yakima Valley will run 50 to 60 per cent with a relatively light loss of trees. However, in the Walla Walla area some orchards were killed and will have to be replanted.

Grapes were hard hit with the 1956 harvest expected to be only about 30 per cent of normal. Strawberries suffered the most damage of any Western Washington crop, dollarwise. In some areas entire fields of plants were killed. Omdahl estimated it will take three years to bring plantings back to the 1955 total of 10,500 acres.

This year's raspberry crop was a total loss, but Omdahl said the plant roots survived the freeze and there should be a crop in 1957.

Nursery stock losses were much higher than first anticipated, having lost all of their said, he stated.

Requests Lane Relocation To Permit Motel

J. W. Lawrence asked council on Monday night for permission to relocate a lane serving lots on Vernon avenue, so that a property at the confluence of Vernon avenue, Comox street, and Westminster avenue might be sold as site for a motel.

It was shown that the lots owned by Mr. Lawrence, instead of facing on Vernon avenue were subdivided so that they faced Comox, and that the present lane divides them. Mr. Lawrence proposed a T-shaped lane, and agreed to allow land for this at the rear of the lots in question, and pay costs of construction.

Council agreed that the move would not do any harm, but also decided that, while this was the case, the matter should be referred to the town planning commission for any comment they might care to make on it.

P. F. Charles and Mrs. A. W. Vanderburgh.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cox are the former's mother, Mrs. R. F. Cox, his sister, Mrs. Marjorie Engles, with sons Rudy and Roland, all from Cranbrook.

Western Greyhound Bus Lines Win Two Major Safety Awards

Western Canadian Greyhound Lines captured the two major awards in the 1955 Greyhound National Safety Contest conducted among the companies' 13 divisions in the United States and Canada. R. L. Borden, president of Western Canadian Greyhound Lines, announced recently.

The Western Canadian drivers captured the Marcus Dow trophy with a 56.6 gain in accident free miles. (The comparison is with the company's average of safe mileage for the three preceding years) and the William F. Grant Plaque for the best mileage-between-accident record.

These awards were made from the company headquarters in Chicago.

The Western Canadian drivers' records were made in driving more than 11,000,000 miles last year over 6,458 miles of routes between Winnipeg and Vancouver. Throughout the entire system in the U.S. and Canada, drivers of the 6,100 buses showed a 19.8 percent improvement in accident-free mileage while driving 500,000,000 miles.

The Marcus Dow Trophy was named after a former Safety

Director of the Greyhound Corporation who died in 1950. The trophy has been competed for since 1946.

The William F. Grant Plaque was put into competition in 1954 in honor of another Safety Director of Greyhound and a former president of the American Hockey Association and Kansas City Hockey Club.

The Western Canadian Greyhound Lines is the only division in Canada to have won the Marcus Dow Trophy previously, capturing it twice in the past ten years.

Western Canadian Greyhound Lines was started in 1929 by G. B. Fay, who retired last month. He was succeeded by Mr. Borden who has been with the organization for 20 years.

The Line started running a daily service with eight buses between Lethbridge, Calgary and Edmonton. Later they expanded to Fernie, and then Nelson. A progressive expansion program continued into Saskatchewan and Manitoba until the Company now runs 120 stainless steel "Courtier" buses.
